Dr. Jethro O. Manly

In the transition of a junior college ta a faur-year college status, there are many areas in which an institution must expand. In this expansion many peaple play an important role. Perhaps the most important is played by thase wha set high goals and objectives—or the "dreams" for tomorrow.

Pfeiffer has been fortunate to have had one such persan who not anly set the high standards of a "dream" for the future but also worked diligently in many phases to see that "dream" become a reality.

His contribution was a plan for an advanced science department with necessary equipment and space for serious research and investigation. He also planned a science building which would not anly meet the needs of taday but would also meet the needs af tomarrow, with equipment which the student could use to enable himself to live a better life in an age af scientific investigation, atomic power, and space curiosity.

Many long hours were spent studying the needs of the college, plans for architecture, equipment needs, and financial expectatians. Once the building was camplete, mare time was needed to search for the "right" professional people to teach in the science department sa that the full dream could be recagnized.

Taday, we have aur science building and an expanded science program. Because of our deep appreciation for his self-sacrifice and hard wark and because of aur understanding the importance of his "dream" and its realization, we dedicate the 1959 Chimes ta Dr. Jethra O. Manly.

NEW FACES

Looks like this fello is here to stoy.

Money, again?

Getting into college isn't so easy after all!!

New faculty members, new students, new school year.

FAMILIAR FACES

Bill and friends gather in front of Rowe and ponder what the new college year holds.

Meanwhile back at the Rec—folks are renewing old times.

Anybody have a dime?

Heiner Hall

You can tell that the new students are here!

Working up an appetite

Hum . . . m, satisfying???

When the coffee is cold and the eyes and mind are tired, it is time for a "break . . ."

And so the boys thumb a ride to Solisbury for a show . . .

While others go to the B & B for eats.

Give me a coke and a pack of nabs!

See you tonight!

Johnnie's lost in a world of creativity.

DR. J. LEM STOKES, II...

Leader of Pfeiffer's transition from the ranks of junior college to that of a senior four-year liberal arts college is Dr. J. Lem Stokes, II, born in Korea, the son of a Methodist missionary, educated at Asbury, Duke, and Yale, who assumed the presidency of the college in July, 1953. In May, 1954, the Board of Trustees authorized the advance to the rank of full senior college and instructed President Stokes to proceed in all possible haste in that direction.

Under his direction, the college has undertaken a three-fold program of growth: development of a broad liberal arts program of academic excellence which saw its first class of fifty-eight students receive the bachelor's degree in June, 1957; a two-million-dollar physical expansion program completed with an additional enlargement plan of $800,000 almost ready to start; and the building of a faculty which will compare favorably with the great liberal arts colleges of the nation.

Never dismayed or discouraged, convinced that ways can and must be found, armed with faith and prayer, President Stokes has begun the task of developing a faculty, a program for expansion of physical facilities, and a plan to place the college on a sound financial basis. Thus, Pfeiffer's rapid development has not resulted from ample funds; rather, it has resulted from a progressive administrator who has placed quality along with service to the church first and has fought successfully against what seemed to be insurmountable odds to secure the resources which have been necessary to meet the needs.

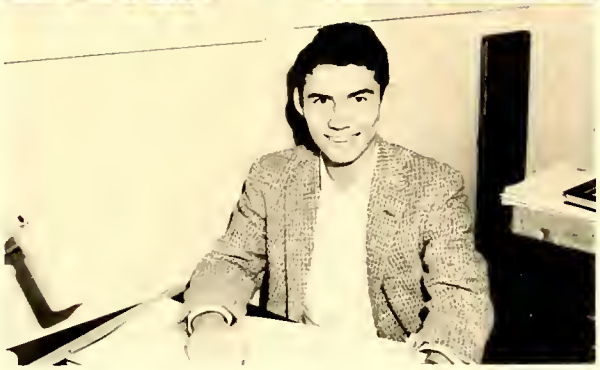
The



At the beginning of the year Editor "Whit" Warren and Assistant Editor Phil Shepard hid themselves in a closet in the main building night after night working out the plans for the 1959 Chimes. Then "Whit" rushed about campus, arranging for pictures to be made, instructing his staff in their duties, constantly pressed for time. Phil worked closely with him, tying up loose ends. The photographer from Smith's Studio constantly asked people to smile. And Student Photographer Howard Powell, followed and assisted by Kathy Langston, froze for the sake of annual pictures when he spent one day outside in a four-inch snowfall. Fresh pictures poured into the science building where the staff worked; and Rita Shumaker, aided by Stan Thompson, Bill Latham, Barbara Dodson, Gerry Hamilton, Johnny Stokes and Milton Barden concentrated on copy and captions. Sports Editor Phil Stone scooped in sports copy, much of it first hand.

Cooch Don Miller

Never before hos one single unit alone seen such a fast and strong rise in school spirit as the bosketboll team experienced this post year. Co-captains Richard Biddy and Phil Stone were the only veterans who lasted the full season. Injuries plagued the teom throughout, seemingly striking some of the most prominent members of the team.

Coach Don Miller had o relatively young teom with considerable strength being offered by the freshman members Hal Stealey, Bill Claypoole, Miles McWilliams, ond Vince Hoch. The Panthers should be plenty tough next year.

Cooch Harold Tockett

The junior varsity, or freshmon team, under the capable coaching of Harold Tackett and with an abundance of talent had a good year on the court with a 11-5 record. The most outstanding player by far for the frosh was big Miles McWilliams, who ended the season with a 17.5 scoring average per game. Miles got plenty of help from other very outstanding freshmen: Bill Claypoole, Hal Stealey, Buck Kindred, Sid Jones, Rip Collins, Thurston Frye, and Vince Hoch.

The J. V. team offered a chance to improve the play and ability of the "stors of tomorrow"—and improve they did! Several of the team members made so much improvement that some of them even worked into the starting lineup of the varsity.

Coach Jae Ferebee

The 1957-58 season wos the greatest season for the best team anywhere in the South—the Panthers of Pfeiffer College. Coached by Mr. Joe Ferebee ond led by the tremendous pitching of Tommy Jomieson and Roger Williams, the Panthers turned in a 16-1-1 record—the best anywhere. A highlight of the season come when Roger Williams pitched a no-hitter. Then Pfeiffer's credit was boosted by Tommy Jamieson's being nomed All-State.

Aces on the diomond os well os strong power hitters were Bob Bost, Red Russell, Jimmy Coggins, Larry Graham, Johnny Robertson, Jerry Bryson, Tommy Eaton, Brack Bailey, and Jim Irby.

SOCCER

In the second year for soccer at Pfeiffer, on ever-increosing following was gathered from the student body. The mony beautiful fall afternoons were filled with shouts and yells as the Panthers met some of the best teams in the South. The games with Duke, Carolina, and Dovidson saw the Ponthers fighting it out toe to toe as they met the superior teams with much more experience.

With only five returning lettermen—Coy Plott, Wayne Smith, Don Tweed, Glenn Wellborn, and Milt Barden—the team got off to a rather slow start but rapidly picked up strength to smack Belmont Abbey full force 9-1 on the home field.

With a new spirit, a new practice room, many new faces, the same fiery enthusiasm, the grapplers spent the full season meeting such teams as Appalachian, Fort Bragg, Davidson, Duke, N. C. State, and Cherry Point Marines. Coach Wollace Martin worked with the team for the fourth year.

The line-up for this season was composed of veterons Ken Cuthbertson, Cay Platt, Bill Barker, Captain Glenn Wellborn, and Gene Whitesides. New men to the kingdom of the mat were Don Gabriel, Ken Andersan, Keith Young, Thod Brysan, and Hal Furr.

In past years, wrestling has gained in popularity more than any other sport at Pfeiffer. Fans always enjoy watching the skill and physical strength shown on the mats.

In addition to his basketball duties, Mr. Dan Miller coached the golf team again this year. Pfeiffer had several top notch golfers who inhabited the home links at Badin Country Club. The Panther golfers spelled trouble for all opponents they met; their six wins and two ties attest the fact. Catawba was beaten twice; High Point, East Carolina, Belmont Abbey and Guilford were each beaten once. East Carolina and High Point racked up one tie each.

PFEIFFER...

Faith in the future, boldness of action, and dedication to the service of the church, community, and students are terms often used to describe Pfeiffer College, Narth Carolina's newest senior liberal arts college and the largest educationol institution supported by Methodist women.

Although new in one respect, Pfeiffer, in the role of the traditional liberal arts college, has evolved a program which has as its goal the imparting to its students af those qualities required to lead a well-rounded life in service to fellow man, whether it be through full-time service in the church or through broad avenues of Christian commitment in every vocation, trade, and profession.

To accomplish its goal, the College developed a challenging plan in each of the following areas: Academic training of the highest order; a program favorable to the develapment in each student of an intelligent, yet warm, Christian faith; proficiency in the use of the written ond spaken word; the strengthening in each student of the foundations needed for sound physical and mental health; the opportunities for growth in the cultural and social graces.

Expansion of physical facilities has seen almost two million dollars expended since 1953 Centered around a core of eight buildings valued at over three million dollars—a gift from the late Mr. and Mrs. Henry Pfeiffer of New York City—the expansion program has seen the erection of three new handsome men's residence halls, on imposing $750,000 science building, faculty and student apartment homes, thirty-two new faculty homes, and modernization of many existing buildings.

Financing of this progrom came from money from three sources: self-liquidating loans from the Federal Housing and Home Finance Agency, a challenge grant of $750,000 from the Pfeiffer Foundation, and a response on the part of nearby residents of Stanly county, Methodist women and their friends to the challenge grant.

It is of historical importance to note the interest of the Pfeiffer family in the College. Through her interest in the Woman's Home Missionary Society of The Methodist Church Mrs. Henry Pfeiffer in 1934 visited the school, then known as Mitchell Junior College. This visit resulted in her and her husband becoming dedicated patrons of the school. In 1935 the name of the school was changed to Pfeiffer College in appreciation of the gift of five buildings to the College that year by Mr. and Mrs. Pfeiffer, valued at three million dollars.

The patronage of Mr. ond Mrs. Pfeiffer, whose philanthrapic interests were to be found around the world, continued throughout their lifetime and spread to other members of the Pfeiffer family. The Henry Pfeiffer Chapel, the dominating building on the campus, was erected in 1942 by Mrs. Pfeiffer as a memorial to her husband. Following her death in 1947, the Mitchell Gymnasium and three other structures were erected from the residue of her estate as directed by the Woman's Division of Christian Service of The Methodist Church. In 1954 funds from the estate of the late G. A. Pfeiffer made possible the expansion of "The Delight and Garfield Merner Library," two dormitories, the chapel organ enlargement and other additions.

The 1950's found Pfeiffer in a period of transition. The College was successful in preserving many of the fine attributes of the smaller school —a warm, friendly campus; an excellent rapport between students and faculty with all of its many advantages; and an atmosphere friendly to Christian thought and action. The latter tradition is kept strong by the seventeen denaminations represented in the student body, in required weekly chapel and assembly programs, and in a curriculum requirement which calls for each student to complete nine hours in the Department of Religion and Philosophy before graduation.

In keeping with Pfeiffer's heritage as a church-related college, a "churchmanship program" designed to train laymen for places of leadership in the local church was developed. This and the total campus Christian Life program is strengthened by seven ordained ministers and two Methodist deaconesses on the faculty. Fruitfulness of this effort is evidenced by the fact that almost one-fifth of the June, 1958, graduating class are entering some phase of full-time Christian service while others have assumed positions of lay leadership in their local church.

President Stokes, in commenting on the future of the College, said: "When we review our history including the founding of the school as a 'home institute' near Lenoir, North Carolina, in 1885, its move to Misenheimer in 1910, its accreditation as a high school in 1914, the addition of work on the junior college level in 1928, its accreditation as a juniar college in 1934 by the State Department of Education, and its movement to the ranks of a senior college in 1954, one is ever aware of the support given the College by Methodist women and their friends.

"We have a plan for the future rooted in the conviction that the church-related liberal arts college has a significant contribution to make to our Christian-democratic way of life. This calls for a five-million-dollar expansion to provide a much needed student union building, a classroom building, expanded library facilities, athletic fields, and other related facilities. The plan calls for an expansian of our scholarship aid program, lifting of faculty salary scale, and enlargement of the endowment.

"We at Pfeiffer believe we cannot adequately train young men and women to meet the challenges of today's world unless we have the facilities, staff, and faculty of the highest standards. Such is our goal."

EDITOR'S ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

In a publication of this type the editor is faced with many difficult decisions. One involves the initial plan and purpase of the annual. The editor may either follow ideas accepted in the past, or he may endeavor to branch aut with certain changes in stereotyped procedures—in which case the future holds only uncertainty. The 1959 Chimes has been published with a very definite goal in mind. This goal was determined from the very beginning—to shaw yaur life as a college student as you actually lived it and to show it in such a manner that you will wish to remember it the same way.

The attempt ta reach this goal has not been easy, but our wark will be compensated for if we can feel that aur efforts are acceptable by you as students and faculty.

I could never have seen this annual to the publisher without the combined and co-ordinated efforts of each and every member of this year's staff, whose loyalty and endurance will never be surpassed. People like Howard Powell and Kathy Langston, who diligently planned and phatographed pictures, in spite of a four-inch snowfall, rain, and canceled appointments. Staff members like Mary Franklin Crouse, Caralyn McLean, Betty Mases, Kaye Blakely, and Rose Crouse, who did an excellent jab on the classes. To an outstanding group headed by Rita Shumaker, I offer my thanks for the history recorded in words by Barbara Dodson, Bill Latham, John Stakes, Tommy Jamieson, and Milt Barden. To the business staff I give not only my thanks but my heartfelt sympathy far the sad stories that were endured while selling the ads which kept us from applying for a government loan. Sylvia Kiser, Gloria Boring, Jerry Gardner, Myron Goebelbecker, and Bobby Westmoreland—your aggressive selling will always be appreciated. Phil Stane and Tommy Jamiesan I can never thank enough for the special treatment given to the sports section. Although most of the annual cansists af photographs, the special art features are a glowing symbol af the brilliance of Vida Sumner, Sammie Halshouser, and Dan Aderhold. To Barbara and Marjorie Smith, Patty Gregg, and Judy Coe—thanks for the many haurs at the typewriters; without yau this annual would never have reached the publisher. And to Miss Margaret Stuckey, our advisor, whose unselfish assistance, calm reassurance, and inspiration will never be fargatten.

For the excellent write-up in the develapment section I affer my appreciation ta Mr. William Reasonover. Special thanks also to the science department for the use of the lab which served as this year's staff room.

I could nat camplete this acknowledgment without mentioning Chuck Reese, Assistant Editor Phil Shepard, and my wife Barbara, who nat anly worked like Trojans but continually gave me advice and encauragement—without which I would never have made it.

To all of these and many more, I give my sincerest thanks and pay my own tribute to the outstanding staff of the 1959 Chimes.
